

 r/CUNY • 2y ago
Logical_Rutabaga9957

Is John Jay a good school?

I recently got accepted into John Jay through on-site admissions at my high school. I hope to pursue a job in criminal justice and hopefully get a job in the government; the cost is low, and I'm only 40 minutes away. Is it worth going to this school? I still have three more colleges to hear from.

Thank you!

↑ 26 ↓ 25

 Databricks_Inc • Promoted

Discover how to deploy high-performing AI agents that integrate GenAI with your data

Download

databricks.com

Join the conversation

Sort by: Best ▾ 🔍 Search Comments

 flashcapulet • 2y ago
John Jay

Yes, especially when you want to work in govt, criminal justice, or law enforcement. There will be a ton of internship opportunities in all those fields. Good luck.

↑ 26 ↓ Reply ...

 Top-Combination-7718 • 2y ago

Really good school and 100% recommend! Just graduated last spring with my BA in Criminal Justice and from the Honors Program and honestly it was some of the best 4 years. There's a lot of opportunities for great internships, the faculty for the most part are really awesome to learn from and down to earth. My professor at John Jay introduced me to Teach for America and now I am an ELA teacher making around 70k right out of college! You should go for it especially if CJ or government is what you're interested in

⊖ ↑ 9 ↓ Reply ...

 1   Reply ...

loiteraries • 2y ago

Avoid Criminal Justice as a major. It gives you no skillsets in wider markets. You will learn “criminal justice” in a police academy if that’s what you want as a career. Choose a major that can be more marketable and gives you skills.

 9   Reply ...

Top-Combination-7718 • 2y ago

You couldn’t be more wrong lol. The BA program at JJ teaches you about the legal realm of things (huge if you intend to pursue law school) and relies a lot on data driven practices especially when getting closer to the capstone (if data analysis is more your thing), something a lot of CJ programs lack. Got taught how to fully code through the BA program faculty at JJ for Criminal Justice and could easily have used that skillset to earn a job as a Data Scientist, analyst, etc. Claiming the major gives you “no skillset,” is not really true IMO.

 3   Reply ...

Key_Clothes6499 • 2y ago

good point especially if you change your mind about law enforcement.

 1   Reply ...

Logical_Rutabaga9957 OP • 2y ago

What do you think about political science then? im still indecisive on what major i want to pursue. i just know i want to work in government

 1   Reply ...

shib_aaa • 2y ago

polisci is such a worthless degree vro

 4   Reply ...

riveracat1297 • 2y ago

I love my polisci BA

 2   Reply ...

flashcapulet • 2y ago

John Jay

What do you want to do in govt? Figure that out and go from there.

 1   Reply ...

Nervous_Pie_7653 • 2y ago

(i just know i want to work in government is NOT a valid reason for any major. gov is huge. which department/field?)

1 Reply ...

u/OpenAI • Promoted

Put a twist on your selfies with ChatGPT images.

Sign Up

chatgpt.com

ShisuiGamer9_YT • 2y ago

If you want to pursue criminal justice it's probably the best CUNY you could go too.

4 Reply ...

Key_Clothes6499 • 2y ago

If you want to go into law enforcement/criminal justice than its honestly perfect since there is a lot of networking from different agencies around the country. Many professors are ex-law enforcement personnel themselves. Also look into the Ace program if you are coming in as a freshmen, you get a free unlimited card every semester, book stipend, and if your fafsa+tap(financial aid) doesn't cover all the cost of tuition. I am not part of the program but I was part of the ACE equivalent in community college aka ASAP (i transfered into john jay from a CUNY community college). The Fitness Center is also decent(my only complain is its a little small) and the swimming pool is amazing and clean. The CONS I don't like personally is the schools really packed and if you don't register right away your schedule won't be the best. Not a con for me, but a con for many people, is pretty obvious that CUNY's including John Jay are commuter schools, which means you won't have the typical college experience and have to actively try to have a social life. Another con for me was the commute was long (1 hour and 15 minutes on a good day and yes it could and could get worse than the normal commute) but 40 minutes is not bad.

4 Reply ...

Logical_Rutabaga9957 OP • 2y ago

Wow! Thank you for giving me your experience. I appreciate it, and yeah, it stinks that its a commuter school. A part of me wishes I could dorm experience that college life, but I can't afford it, and I need to stay to help out my family.

1 Reply ...

Sparklingemeralds • 2y ago interesting elective classes. I made like only two friends in my psych classes but I made my friend groups through my electives.

Make sure you take interesting classes. I took boxing, piano, German, painting, drawing, etc. It's a great conversation starter bc people are going to be interested and/or impressed. People LOVED seeing my boxing gear. Also those classes won't be as stressful as your required classes, so that means more time to relax and talk to people!!

People in that school are friendly, I swear. It's just that the commuter experience doesn't leave much room for socializing but the biggest mistake you can make is immediately leaving the room once class is over. Talk to people!!

 1   Reply ...

[deleted] • 2y ago

What is on-site admissions and how does that work? Thanks.

 1   Reply ...

Logical_Rutabaga9957 OP • 2y ago

Basically, my school has colleges come in and give interviews to students as well as look at their transcripts. Based on that, the admissions officers give you a decision on the spot if you get in.

 1   Reply ...

[deleted] • 2y ago

I think that's great. What other CUNY schools participated? Feel free to DM me if you prefer. Thanks.

 1   Reply ...

Logical_Rutabaga9957 OP • 2y ago

I know Kingsbrough came to my school. I'm not sure how it works exactly, but I believe the counselors at my school had to organize it.

 1   Reply ...

[deleted] • 2y ago

Thanks.

 1   Reply ...

Separate-Waltz4349 • 2y ago

May i ask what your GPA is

 1   Reply ...

+ Create

1 Reply ...

AdBusy6029 • 2y ago

I personally love John Jay. Most of the professors are extremely smart and know what the heck they're talking about and John Jay has been regarded as like the second best school if not the first for criminal justice in the country. It's also rated top ten in public schools in North America. Academics wise, it's great. It's a little difficult to make friends, however, because it's a commuter school and a lot of the time once class is over people want to get the heck out of there (me being one of those students) but there are efforts you can make that'll help you make friends. Aside from that, the administration at John Jay such as the financial aid department kinda sucks and it takes them 20 years before they will actually get back to you on things and you need to harass them to do so, but other than that it's decent. I started loving John Jay once I finally got done with my prerequisite classes. It's worth it!

1 Reply ...

[deleted] • 2y ago

This school is awful. I regret going there.

1 Reply ...

Logical_Rutabaga9957 OP • 2y ago

How so? Were the professors unhelpful? Was it too crowded?

1 Reply ...