

first day tomorrow and im sick to my stomach </33

i hope this is on topic to post here but im starting college tomorrow and i feel so nervous and idk how to cope with it :((

i get that like everyones nervous on their first day, everyone will be preoccupied with their own things and whatnot, but that doesn't really ease me either. i tried to see if anyone else was posting if they're going to the same school as me (john jay) and haven't seen anything which understandable but still plus it doesn't help i'll be commuting on my own ;; up until now i've been picked up/dropped off to and from school which i have been so grateful for but thats just created more anxiety for me because now this is the first time i'll be travelling on my own. i remember begging my mum last year of hs to let me go on my own bc i knew this would happen but 🤔🤔 and like i've been on the subway a few times but always with someone else, i don't feel confident in myself to be able to do it alone ;; i keep thinking of all the bad things that could happen, if i'm not situationally aware etc etc. like i already had a good amount of "awareness" i wanna say from just me naturally being an anxious person but the last few months everyone in my family has been hammering down on it being like "always watch your back/dont talk to anyone/stay as far away from the tracks as you can bc someone will push you down" and so many other things which i get is normal family things to be worried over and im grateful that everyone is so worried for me and i know they're just looking out for me but that on top me already knowing and looking out for it just is too much and it feels more counterproductive now i went to the orientation and even then i got pretty lost too, i don't know how i'm gonna be able to navigate. i think the only things i'm looking forward to is that no one i know goes there so i'll be away from everyone in hs (i didnt end it on a good note so i'm really looking forward to the whole "reinvent yourself" thing) and the fact that my schedule i think was pretty decent. or i mean i used to think it was decent but then my mum mentioned how taking afternoon classes kind of kills your whole day and since she's said that i see it now and ughhh. like i know myself i know i'm not a morning person i can't wake up for an 8am especially if it takes me like 2-3 hrs to get ready and commute. i know my choice was the best thing for me but i'm starting to doubt everything :(( i used to be a very self proclaimed introvert and very socially awkward but i like to think i've gotten more sociable but admittedly i do still struggle with it. and how everyone says that its hard to make friends too is kinda making me nervous too i dont want to have to be very extra and overbearing and annoyingly persistent to make friends but that's what it sounds like i have to do and just ugh everything is scary.

i was really looking forward to college and i really wanted to get out of my old school and be as far away from home as i could get, i know why i made all the decisions i did but now that i'm here i'm just starting to doubt and regret everything, i was so excited to have this freedom and to be able to do things for myself and just actually have a life but now it's making me just sick to my stomach and idk how to cope, i haven't been this anxious about anything in forever. my plan tomorrow is to get there early and walk around to try to find my classes, then maybe see if anythings happening during the free hr (? i doubt there'll be anything first day so idk here ???) go to class, visit office hours if i'm able just to say hi and familiarize myself with where to go, i know the first week is hell but is there anything else that i should prepare for or any advice or something i dont know TT thank you i just needed to get this off my chest update (28/08/24, 3:20 AM): oh my gosh hello everyone !! i absolutely was not expecting such an amount of responses when i posted this oh my god im still in such disbelief, i'm literally shaking typing this lol thank you so much to everyone who commented and reached out, everyones words have been so comforting i truly cannot express it in words the amount of gratitude i feel. i've been so anxious thinking about today that i haven't been able to eat these past few days, but reading everyones comments has helped to ease my anxieties, thank you so much 🤗🤗 for everyone starting tomorrow, best of luck 🍀 ! i'll definitely update this after tomorrow lol ! thank you so much again TT !!

update (28/08/24 11:42 PM): hiii idk if anyone is gonna read this update but i just wanted to share how my first day went and surprise surprise it was very much totally fine 😭😭 (to absolutely no ones surprise). i was genuinely floored by how sweet everyone was, i swear everyone at my old school was so mean i was like ??? it was such a shock TT i even made some friends !! even though most ppl i met and talked to are in diff years, i hope we get to stay in contact 🤗🤗 !! i just cant get over how nice everyone was my heart feels like it's gonna burst. i dont want to get too excited, i know college is going to be hard and i'm not trying to be all starry eyed naïve idealistic "oh what will go wrong" sounding, but gosh TT i really was just catastrophizing </33 i used to be like this a lot i cant believe i didnt catch it sooner. i really hope i get to run into some of these people again, but even if i don't i feel so much more comfortable being able to talk to people. i know not every interaction will be as nice, but i want to interact with so many more people !!

also side note everyone there has such great style hello ??? i saw so many cool outfits it took everything in me to not be complimenting someone every 5 seconds TT !! i feel like i was a little awkward honestly, a few interactions were a bit odd (because of me i enjoy talking to ppl but i realize i definitely have quite a bit to go if i want to say im good at it lol), but i think that most people got i was coming from a good place so ;; hopefully idk

i got to the building early (four. hours. early. because my first prof stood us up lol </33 jk not rly class was just cancelled) and had time to walk around and find my classes, i even got to visit the westport building ! i know i have a class there so im glad i got to see it ;; !! but also some ppl i met today offered to walk to me to class too which TT oh i could cry thinking about i havent had such a nice interaction with someone in forever i hope i get to see them again :"))

and about my fears of public transport; old me was so right for wanting that freedom i dont know why i was freaking out so much TT !! i guess it was one of those "you want it so much but when you finally have it you dont know what to do with it" type things, it was so therapeutic honestly. i remember coming home from school everyday and being so terribly drained, but having that walk (despite how exhausted i was lol) was so mind clearing and god i loved getting the sunlight in TT lol you can see how sheltered i am. honestly the train wasnt terrible, on the bus there was some weird guy but the minute he got off me the people around me started to talk abt him it was lowk really funny bc i was freaking out the whole time, but they eased the tension 😭😭 so grateful for them honestly ;;

right now im in bed relaxing mentally preparing myself for tomorrow... new classes tomorrow, and then after that it's almost a full week, then it's really a full week and... but just one day at a time ig im really anxious but for all the anxieties i feel i think im just as equally excited wow this was a very heartfelt post for a subreddit thats mostly people asking about financial aid, this was very passionate lol. i liked reading your thoughts you'll be fine! you will start making a lot of friends when classes start. a lot of people in my school make group chats for their classes, you might find you get added to one and meeting lots of cool people. once you start cuny, you'll find that it isn't that much different from high school. you'll be okay. it sounds look you will make lots of friends.

this was so nice to read thank you so much for enjoying my anxious rambling lol 😭😭 when i was typing this i genuinely wasn't thinking anyone would read all this, so it makes me happy to hear you enjoyed (???) reading my thoughts 🧑🧑 thank you for your words of comfort ! i always thought the group chat thing was something that would only happen on tv or in movies, i'm actually a little excited now 🥳🥳 !!

thank you for having faith in me, it means the world genuinely 🧑🧑 thank you so much, i wish you all the best in everything 🙌🙌

What if social circles already started forming before the semester starts? Are you cooked if thats the case? I didn't even go to the orientation cuz I wasn't in the country at the time trust me, there won't be that many "social circles". you'll be fine. you'll meet a lot of nice people, don't sweat it yeah, but i definitely think even if social circles formed, you're not locked out. my hs was pretty big and it was like that when i went there (i went to a hs pretty far from my middle school, and the hs was connected to an elementary and middle so like... everyone knew everyone TT), but even then i still made friends :) !! from what i'm hearing and the responses here, i don't doubt you'll make friends 🧑🧑 ! wishing you all the best !! good luck ^_^ !!

Im nervous too. Tmw is my first day @Hostos. Just focus on getting everything ready, go to bed early so you can get there before it gets packed. Walk around (put your phone away), take your time to learn about the different buildings, find your classroom, stay aware of your surroundings etc. just know that you're not the only one. You'll be fine, good luck!

John Jay

Hi! I just transferred to John Jay and this will be my first semester there. I went today to familiarize myself with where my classes are and that helped so much to ease some of my anxiety so if you have some time to do that then I would definitely try to.

There are many clubs and activities you can do that will help you make friends. I'm extremely introverted and made 0 friends at my last school so I really want to try and put myself out there for the remainder of college.

Commuting can be scary at times but I'm sure with your afternoon classes it'll make it a little easier and hopefully you'll miss most of the crazy's. Try to sit in the middle of the train where it's populated and maybe get a pepper spray or something. Having that on me makes me feel slightly less scared.

If you'd be down I'd totally be your first John Jay friend but either way I wish you the best of luck this year and I'm sure with time you'll grow to be more confident in the decisions you made!

oh my god thank you so much for this reply :((this was so heartwarming to hear genuinely 🥰 especially with the commute part, i think that's one of my biggest fears lol (which is so weird to me because usually i'm not such a paranoid person </33). i was thinking during the afternoon it would be more likely to run into someone you wouldn't want to ;; thank you for that especially, you have no idea how much you've calmed my nerves from that alone

i wish you the best of luck for you !! in hs i was in a lot of clubs and extracurriculars, and while it was exhausting at times it made me feel very fulfilled, no matter how tired i was it came from a place of love and passion. i used to think i wasn't a very social person, but after joining so many clubs i realized i just wasn't in the right spaces lol. i think it helps to be in a place where people want to socialize smthn smthn idk i don't want to yap your ear off too much with this but !! yes definitely looking forward to clubs (despite hearing sm mixed things abt them 😬 ??) and definitely would say to join some ^_^ !! maybe we'll even end up in the same one lol let's make this year a good year ˘(≥∇≤*)o !! and i'd love to be your friend :3c !! we'll make this a good semester i'm sure of it (´∇`j♡j) !! thank you so much again for your kind words, and once again good luck tomorrow !! we got this ^o^ !!

are you planning on joining any clubs at john jay? i'm SUPEERR new to the campus so i'm not familiar tbh

  2  Reply ...

starlight_wav OP • 2y ago

hi ! sorry for getting back so late but yeah i'm planning to join a bunch of clubs (><)o !! i want to settle into classes more so probably not right away, ill see if i can sit in some to see how it'll integrate into my schedule but yeah !! i just really gotta figure out how though 🤔 ! someone in one of my classes promoted the singing club, but i also wanna check out the rifle team, and maybe student council since i was on my schools last yr ? but yeah ! what about you though :00 ?? are you planning to join some :3c ?

we're literally so similar. i was also picked up and dropped off to and from school my whole life. going to college was the first time i took public transportation by myself. i literally had to make my mom ride with me on the first day 😭 i'm a senior now but i used to get so scared of being attacked, assaulted, pushed onto the tracks. sometimes this paranoia comes back- i have unfortunately skipped class a few times because i was so convinced something bad would happen to me. but i think that you'll get used to it after a few weeks. you're a very aware person so that definitely helps with keeping you safe your mom seems very pessimistic! i know my mom is like that too. but don't let her make you doubt your choices. you should try taking some morning classes in the future semesters so you can get a taste of what time of day is best for you. also making friends can be hard but clubs help. go to club meetings and events. class groupchats are good too

starlight_wav OP • 2y ago

oh my god we really are similar :((i also ended on a bad note with my friends in hs, so that's exactly why i'm looking forward to the whole reinvention lol TT how did you handle the paranoia in the beginning ? was it just a "swallow the frog" type thing ?

and yeah my mum does tend to me 😭😭 i know it comes from a place of love, so i feel bad complaining but it certainly doesn't help lol ;;

hearing all of this though makes me feel so much more at ease though, thank you so much for everything 🧡🧡 !! i wish you all the best in life truly, thank you so much 🧡 !!

first off, i hope ur first day went smoothly 😊 i go to jjay too! (senior 🧢) and i was a transfer student so i definitely fought for my life... u will get through this! it definitely took me a while to make friends with ppl but honestly class group chats will be ur best friend (if they're made...). if not, don't stress about it too much.

as for advice, if possible try to make templates for ur classes (especially if ur in a stem major bc the lab reports..😭) and put every important date in the syllabus on a calendar of some sort just so you know what's coming next and u won't be blindsided. definitely take advantage of the tutoring center ASAP bc u would be surprised how quickly u can fall behind. just focus on having a good start to the freshman year 🐱💪

oh god this is so comforting to hear. i've never rllly had friends of my background because of where i went to school i was like one of the only brown kids, but even in hs it was hard to make friends bc i wasn't rllly into the things ppl were (i dont say that in a "oh im not like the others" way i just have very loser nerd interests 🤔🤔 i say that lightheartedly but you get it lol)

I was in the exact same boat as you last year. I didn't have to take the train in high school so commuting to the city was initially nerve wrecking. I also didn't have any friends from high school that were going to the same college as me, so I can relate with you about being scared of not making friends in college. The first few days might be hard but trust me, you'll get used to it eventually!! Good luck, you'll do just fine. It's okay to feel a little anxious, I think most freshman feel like that anyway so you're not alone.

Hey :)

You'll do fine. I was also nervous my first day going to JJAY but honestly, it's such a great school with awesome people. Not gonna lie and say everyone is nice but so far I've met and become friends with the greatest people who attend JJAY. Try to talk to people around you in class and also attend events. I think there's one tomorrow or Thursday. That's the one thing that helped me open up. It gets easier as time goes by. Try to be confident and positive. I've been going to the school for three years and I'm so nervous about tomorrow also but trying to remain positive. I hope you have a great day tomorrow and a great semester.

Don't be nervous. The only thing different about college would prob be a little more responsibility and lecture halls.

I recommend going in early and go around your campus and get used to where everything is.

I was just like you during my freshman years as well

liveyourlifexo21 • 2y ago

I know how it feels. I was also super super nervous during my first day. I'm a sophomore now, I think no matter what people say you will feel the anxiety that's a given, however it gets better as you go. And about traveling, I agree with you it's really hard especially as a woman taking the subway alone. But I think what helps more is if you don't stare at people randomly and just mind your own business (having your AirPods on all the time really helps me as I also have severe anxiety issues)

Hi! Idk what the JJ campus looks like (I'm a QC student) but honestly just take some time to wander around and marvel at everything. I remember my first week I was crossing the library at my campus and I looked up at it, it was literally humongous from my perspective and I loved it. I went to the top floor and the skyline was amazing, not compared to the quad but it's the little things you romanticize that makes it nice. Enjoy yourself and the feeling of a new chapter opening in your life! Also, don't worry about making friends or force it, just join clubs and go with the flow! Sometimes you will meet very agreeable ppl that you become friends with over night, and sometimes not so much. You'll be fine, setbacks are a part of life so try to have fun regardless:)

ohh my god i adore the QC campus, it's so lovely !! i took a few classes there and honestly if it wasn't so close to where i lived, then i would've definitely gone there 🥹🥹 (and i wanted to join the kpop club TT) !! oh i wish i was able to go to the top floor and see the skyline when i was there, i regret it so much TT !!

the QC campus was definitely so easy to romanticize lol. i used to take classes at powdermaker hall, the trees outside during the spring, and there would be these kids playing volleyball i would get to watch for a bit before going into class ohhh i miss it so much 🥹🥹 i even used to vlog during then, was so living the shoujo girl dream (´▽`f♡)]

thank you so much for this reminder genuinely, i completely forgot how wonderful things could be, i was so wrapped up in my own head about things i didn't realize how exciting new things could be as well. thank you so much for this reminder genuinely, im so in your debt 🙏🙏 best of luck with everything in life, i truly wish you all the best, from the bottom of my heart <33

DramaticYak8479 • 2y ago

Man same I'm also going to John Jay and nervous as well cuz I was snooping around on Insta and I saw that there were already plenty of freshmen who knew each other already so ig im cooked :/

make sure your advisor or whoever put you in classes at your level. meaning, if you took algebra in highschool you shouldnt need to take it here. if you took any ap or honors classes, or even pased the regents, ask your advisor to see if you can pretty much "skip" classes you would have to take. Not sure if this is the norm at other schools but im coming from city tech and the staff is notoriously bad on avg so maybe this warning is unneeded lmao also, you might have a really big friend group starting out, but dont expect to be long lasting. freshman friend groups grow big and die quick lol. dont be discouraged tho, youll probs be in a smaller, but more tightknit one after first semester jitters die down. youll do great, you got this !!!!

It's ok to be nervous. It happens to many. I remember feeling nervous on the first day and following days too, until eventually you start to get into the flow of things. Just remember to breathe and take each day one step at a time. It will all be over before you know it. Enjoy it! And remember, its ok to ask questions if you don't know something or are unsure where a location is. You will do great! We believe in you!

gabrielcev1 • 2y ago • Edited 2y ago

It's college. I assure you everyone is worried about their own life and not going to be paying attention to you. I suffer from a lot of anxiety, I also think I have OCD. I'm not diagnosed but I pretty much have all the symptoms. It's very difficult for me to approach social settings like college, my head starts going at a million miles and my anxiety goes crazy. Just take comfort in the fact that no one cares about you, and I mean this in a nice way. Everyone is in their own bubble, worried about their own problems. All that to say, just do your own thing, try to pay attention and get good grades, don't worry about what anyone thinks and what they are doing, trust me they aren't worried about you. If you can, talk to someone, make some friends. You're going to be ok.

Slow-Leopard-8580 • 2y ago

you sound like you're really kind and sweet person, Km replying late but you got this! i know it can be hard making friends but don't be afraid, everyone will be nice and don't sweat it!
